BRYAN'S NOMINATION

The Boy Orator's Selection at Chicago for President.

MANY SCENES OF GREAT EXCITEMENT

The Nomination Made Unanimous with Some Objection from Pennsylvania—Stampede to the Nebraska on the Fifth Ballot Secured His Success.

Chicago, July 11.—The fourth day's session of the democratic national convention was opened in torrid heat. The galleries were crowded and everything promised a repetition of the exciting scenes of the previous sessions. The absence of Senator Hill and Secretary Whitney was commented upon. After prayer by Rev. Dr. Green, the chair recognized Mr. Harry of Pennsylvania who placed in nomination ex-Gov. Robert E. Pattison. Former Gov. Penneyer of Oregon was then named by Mr. Miller of that state. The nominations were seconded. No other names being presented, the chair declared the nominations closed, and first invoking order, directed the secretary to call the roll of states. When the first state was called Chairman Lomax of Alabama rose to say that several of the delegates desired to vote for former Gov. Russell of Massachusetts, but under the rule he cast the 22 votes of Alabama for Horace Boies. Several of the chairmen of the delegations injected little stump speeches into their announcements of the votes of the delegations. When Massachusetts was reached a delegate announced that the chairman and vice-chairman were absent, and Mr. O'Sullivan of the delegation announced that these gold men were purposely absenting themselves. New Jersey being reached, the chairman of the delegation rose and said that New Jersey declined to vote, whereupon the galleries broke into cheers and hisses. The chair requested that such demonstrations cease, and a delegate shouted: "They are all republicans and ought to be put out." The state of New York refused to vote. South Carolina caused a surprise when the chairman announced that under instructions from her state convention South Carolina cast 17 votes for "her honored son," Benjamin Tillman, one not voting. (Hisses and cheers.)

Slight Applause for Teller.

The state of Colorado, which had been passed by consent, was called and brought Senator Teller's name before the convention. It was received with faint hisses and very slight applause. Massachusetts, which had also been passed, brought in Hill's name by casting one vote for him. The second ballot was begun at 12:35. As soon as it was started Senator White vacated the chair, placing the gavel in the hands of Mr. Richardson of Tennessee. South Carolina swung over from Tillman to Bryan, whose gains had begun early in the balloting. The District of Columbia manifested its capacity for lightning changes by scattering its vote as follows: Three for Bryan, one for Bland, one for Jones and one for McLean. Before the vote was announced and while it was being footed up California announced a change of her vote, as follows: Bryan, 14; Bland, 1; Matthews, 1; Boies, 1. A gain of seven for Bryan.

Attempt to Stampede the Convention.

The result of the fourth ballot had only been partially announced when it was interrupted by an intensely dramatic scene. When Bryan's big gain from 219 to 280 leading Bland and all other candidates was announced, by a prearranged plan Bryan banners were raised on the standards of several states and big shouting was indulged in with a view of stampeding the convention to his support. Nevada, a McLean state; Kansas, a Bland state; Idaho and other states that had previously voted for other candidates, led the movement. They were quickly followed in the order named by New Mexico, California, Nevada, District of Columbia, Idaho, Minnesota, Washington, Virginia and Indian Territory who all raised their standards and joined in the general shout for Bryan. Then a procession was started, the standard of twenty-two states and territories being borne round the hall amid a perfect tornado of cheering. Then Illinois joined in and Florida followed. Ohio came in and a brief spell of silence followed as the rumor passed around that a deal was on with McLean for second place. After fifteen minutes of this hippodrome performance the announcement of the result was continued and the fourth ballot was announced. Immediately following the announcement Senator White said the proceedings had reached the stage where it was necessary for the chair to state his construction of the two-thirds rule. A careful examination of the records of democratic conventions left but one decision open to the chair. The noise and confusion in the hall made the chairman pause: "Oh, gentlemen," he remonstrated, "do keep quiet." Cries of "sit down, sit down."

Two-thirds Rule.

The chairman said that the two-thirds rule had been acted upon without objection ever since its adoption in the Ohio convention of 1872. The rule read:

"Two-thirds of the whole number of votes given shall be necessary to a nomination for president and vice-president." Therefore, in the opinion of the chair, two-thirds of the vote given would nominate the candidate for president and vice-president of the United States. "All the roll," he ordered, and the fifth ballot was begun. It soon became evident that Bryan was secure of votes sufficient on his ballot to nominate him by the necessary majority. When Kentucky, which was one of the states which did not join in the procession, was reached, Mr. Rhea, who had put Senator Blackburn in nomination rose and said: "While Kentucky loves her great democrat, Joe Blackburn, and would be glad to see him elected president of the United States, yet as he served in the confederate army they do not seem to want him (faint hisses). Therefore, Kentucky takes great pleasure in casting her twenty-six votes for the world's greatest orator, W. J. Bryan" (cheers).

Bland's Name Withdrawn.

Ohio still stood by McLean. Illinois, which had asked to be passed, cast her 45 votes for Bryan. This left him with 443 votes, 65 short of the necessary number. Oklahoma changed her 6 votes from Bland to Bryan, making 449. Then Ohio withdrew the name of McLean and cast 46 votes for Bryan, making his total 500. Before the result was announced, but when it was known that Bryan had received within a few votes of the necessary number, Gov. Stone of Missouri ascended the platform, and as soon as order could be obtained he addressed the convention in these words: "Gentlemen of the convention—Two or three days since I received this note from Richard Bland, which I will now read in your hearing: 'I wish it to be understood that I do not desire the nomination unless it is the judgment of the free silver delegates that I would be the strongest candidate. If it shall at any time appear that my candidacy is the least obstruction to the nomination of any candidate who is acceptable to the free coinage delegates or one more acceptable to a majority of those delegates than myself I wish my name at once unconditionally withdrawn from further consideration. I am willing to waive state instructions for me if need be, and to let the free silver delegates settle the whole matter. The cause must be put above the man.' Applause." Gov. Stone then said: "Now, in the name of Missouri, I bow the standard under which we have fought throughout this convention and in its place I lift that of the gifted and glorious son of Nebraska. (Loud and long-continued cheering.) He then cast the 34 votes of Missouri for Bryan."

Stampede to the Bryan Column.

Judge Van Wageningen of Iowa was next recognized. He said the Iowa delegation bore to Chicago with them a message from Gov. Boies saying that he had only the success of the party at heart; that he would not be disappointed if he was not nominated, but would be disappointed if success did not come in November. Judge Van Wageningen then withdrew the name of Boies, and cast the 23 votes of Iowa for Bryan. Senator Jones stood on his chair to announce that Arkansas changed her vote of 16 from Bland to Bryan. Montana changed their 5 votes from Bland to the winner, the chairman declaring that it was the intention of his state to stick to Bland from first to last and they had done their duty. Senator Turpie of Indiana mounted the platform and said amid great noise and confusion that he was authorized to withdraw the name of Gov. Matthews and to cast the vote of Indiana for William J. Bryan of Nebraska. (Cheers.)

Made Unanimous.

Senator Turpie then moved that the nomination of Bryan be made unanimous. After the vote of Texas had been shifted to Mr. Bryan, the chairman put the question on Senator Turpie's motion, and declared it carried—only a few votes in the negative coming from the Pennsylvania delegation. When the announcement was made all order was cast to the winds. The delegates and the audience began to cheer and to wave hats and flags and banners; while the march around the sections was again taken up—all the state emblems being this time carried in the procession. A band of music entered the hall from the vestibule and marched at the head of the procession playing "Marching Through Georgia" and other popular airs. In the chorus of which many of those present joined, "Dixie," which the band also played, had the usual effect of heightening the enthusiasm, and was cheered again and again. At 3:45 p. m. the sergeant-at-arms, in behalf of the chairman, succeeded in getting a hearing so far as to be able to announce that the convention stood in recess till 9 p. m.

Damage Verdict Awarded.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 11.—Judge Hall of the superior court has awarded Benjamin F. Squires and wife of Monroe, $1,700 and costs in their suit against the American Telegraph and Telephone company of New York, they sued for $10,000 for injuries received through the carelessness of an agent of the defendant.

IN RELIGION'S CAUSE

Third Day's Session of the Endeavorers' Convention.

CONSIDERING NEXT PLACE OF MEETING

Address of Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett in Tent Endeavor—A Great Open-Air Chorus of 4,000 Voices This Evening.

Washington, July 11.—The third day's session of the Christian Endeavor convention was opened early this morning with the usual early hour devotional services. Later there was a big gathering at tent Endeavor, where Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, the national superintendent of the National Florence Crittenton mission, delivered an interesting address on "Social Purity, Christ's Way." This afternoon and evening many of the visiting delegates will enjoy excursions to the various points of interest in Washington suburbs. Last evening there were nine vast meetings held in the tents and churches. Tent Williston has been re-erected and is again at the service of the convention. As in the meetings in the morning the capacity of the tents were taxed last night to the utmost to accommodate the crowds. One feature of this convention that calls for especial praise is the singing. A chorus of over 4,000 voices has been in training for several weeks for use at these meetings. This chorus is divided into four sections, one numbering more than 1,000 voices for each tent and one for use of the churches. The sections sit in tiers behind the speakers and sing Endeavor songs in which the vast audiences join.

Great Chorus This Evening.

At the open-air meeting on the capitol grounds this evening at 5 o'clock the united chorus will sing, accompanied by the Marine band. The general topic for the day, "Saved to Serve," was the subject also of last night's meetings. President Clark, Secretary Baer, and Rev. Wayland Hoyt of Philadelphia presided at three meetings in the tents. Addresses were made by moderator John L. Withrow of the Presbyterian general assembly, Bishop Arnett of Ohio, secretary Arthur J. Brown of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, and Rev. Dr. J. W. Chapman of Philadelphia. Other speakers and presiding officers at last night's meetings were as follows: Revs. R. W. Brokaw, Massachusetts; C. L. Pate, Washington; J. L. Campbell, New York; H. H. Robinson, Chicago; L. M. Hufford, Reading, Pa.; J. M. Lowden, Rhode Island; K. B. Tupper, Philadelphia; Henry Kaville, Wisconsin; John Faville, Wisconsin; Charles B. Ramsdell, Washington; W. H. Towers, England; J. H. Bomberger, Ohio; W. H. York, Ithaca; J. B. North, Washington; Asher Anderson, Meriden; Edward Warren, Washington; J. Edward Knipp, Baltimore; A. F. Richardson, West Virginia; Wm. J. Harsha, New York; Matt Hughes, Minneapolis; Prof. J. L. Howe, Virginia; Revs. S. F. Hershey, Boston; F. C. Outman, Newark, and Bishop Hoyt of Iowa.

Next Year's Place of Meeting.

The board of trustees of the United Societies held a prolonged meeting discussing the arrangements for the conventions of 1897 and 1898. The passenger rate from Chicago to San Francisco was the matter of interest with regard to next year's convention. Although no formal decision was announced it is understood that the trustees prefer to leave this an open question, trusting to the good efforts of the Californians to bring this down to the lowest notch. Nashville is in line for the 1898 convention. It is understood that the trustees were favorably inclined to the choice of Nashville, but fear of the effect in cities where the color line is strictly drawn of mixed delegations such as come from the north may prevent the selection of a southern city as the seat of the Christian Endeavor convention. Buffalo, Omaha and Scranton are canvassing for the honor.

ONE TERM ENOUGH.

Bryan says That if Elected He Will Not Accept the Office Again.

Chicago, July 11.—Mr. Bryan received the news of his nomination in his room at the Clifton house. He was not at all excited over his nomination, and, after responding pleasantly to congratulations, shook hands with a United Press reporter and stated that if he wished to say was that, "In order that I may have no ambition but to discharge faithfully the duties of the office, I desire to announce that, if elected, I shall under no circumstances accept a re-election."

No Longer a Democrat.

Boston, July 11.—Collector Winslow Warren of the port of Boston, an appointee of President Cleveland, announced last night that he was no longer a democrat, and that he would vote for McKinley.

Southern Newspaper Bolts.

Chicago, July 11.—The Louisville Post, which yesterday bolted the platform, bolted the ticket to-day. This is no first paper in the south to take this step.

HILL STILL A DEMOCRAT.

Has Nothing to Say at Present on the Result of the Convention.

Chicago, July 11.—"I was a democrat before this convention and I am a democrat still." These were the words of Senator David B. Hill when he was asked by a representative of the United Press late yesterday afternoon to express an opinion upon the selection of Mr. Bryan. Further than this the senator said he did not care to talk.

When the proper time arrives his views upon this convention's results, he said, would be fully set forth. Without waiting for the nomination of a vice-president, Senator Hill, ex-secretary William C. Whitney, and James W. Hindeley, the chairman of the New York democratic state committee, left Chicago last evening for home. Mr. Hill was not in his seat with the New York delegation during the day, and this gave rise to sensational rumors to the effect that the New York senator had decided to bolt the convention, and that his absence was due to this determination. When a representative of the United Press told Mr. Hill of the rumors, the senator said: "Absolutely absurd. Must I attend every session? You know I have been working day and night since I came to Chicago, and I find myself completely worn out. This is why I was absent from the convention, and you may say all statements to the contrary upon my authority."

LAST NIGHT'S SESSION.

An Explanation of State Privilege by Gen. Bragg and Adjournment Until To-day.

Convention Hall, Chicago, July 11.—The proceedings of last evening were opened a few minutes before 9 p. m., when Senator White of California, the chairman, called the convention to order. At that time a fair proportion of the New York and New Jersey delegates were occupying seats in their sections. The fact that both of these state delegations had declined to participate in the balloting for the presidential candidate made their presence a matter of remark. Gen. Bragg then mounted the platform: "I rise Mr. Chairman on a question of state privilege. When the delegation of Wisconsin was to-day engaged in private consultation as to what should be done by it in the future, some gentleman, I suppose he was a gentleman, in fact I know him to be such, stole the colors of our state and passed them as the representation of my delegation and of my state into the trail of the victor for whom we had refused to cast our votes" (cheers). Mr. Dockery attempted to take the stand to answer Gen. Bragg's remarks and as the two Wisconsin antagonists confronted each other, Gen. Bragg shook his finger in Mr. Dockery's face and said: "If you make any personal remarks about me you will suffer for it." The chairman interrupted the gentlemen and the incident dropped. Gov. Stone of Missouri was next recognized, and he moved an adjournment until 10 o'clock to-day. On roll call the motion prevailed. The first open vote in convention against the domination of Gov. John P. Altgeld manifested itself when the governor, in his capacity as chairman of the Illinois delegation, announced the 43 votes of the state for adjournment. Harry Donovan, of Chicago, who has been a Boies man from the start jumped up to challenge the accuracy of the count. His note of defiance was received with applause from the Chicago crowds in the gallery, who understood the situation, and cheers followed each negative vote. Metropolitan and country delegates, who had been lukewarm in their obedience to the governor's will and restless on numerous occasions, voted against adjournment.

FRANK HURD DEAD.

Congressman, Lawyer and a Prominent Ohio Democrat.

Toledo, O., July 11.—Frank H. Hurd, congressman, lawyer and one of the most prominent democrats in Ohio, died at his apartments in the Boody house here yesterday after an illness of five days. The immediate cause of death was apoplexy. Mr. Hurd was born in Mount Vernon, O., in 1841. In 1869 he came to Toledo and engaged in the practice of law. From this district he was thrice elected to congress. He was also a member of the state senate and in 1893 codified the criminal laws of Ohio. It is said he would have been attorney general in the Tilden cabinet had the New Yorker reached the White House in 1876. Mr. Hurd was widely known for his firm advocacy of free trade.

Sibley Declined Second Place.

Chicago, July 11.—When the nomination of Bryan became an assured fact representatives of various state delegations called upon Hon. Joseph C. Sibley of Pennsylvania, and offered him their support for the nomination of vice-president assuring him that if he would consent to accept the position there would be no contest against him. "But I told them," said Mr. Sibley to a reporter for the United Press, "that I felt I could not do the same good service for the cause at the foot of the ticket as the head, or as a private in the ranks, and declined to permit my name to be used. Mr. Sibley left for home on an evening train."

Will Bolt the Ticket.

Watertown, N. Y., July 11.—B. G. Griffin, who was chairman of the New York state democratic committee in the Flower gubernatorial campaign announces that he will not vote for the nominee of the Chicago convention.

W. J. BRYAN'S CAREER

The Youngest Man Ever Nominated for President.

ONLY THIRTY-SIX YEARS OF AGE

Jumped into Fame in One Night After a Speech in the House of Representatives—Now an Editor at Omaha, Nebraska.

Washington, July 11.—There is nothing in romantic literature that surpassed the meteoric career of William Jennings Bryan, who was nominated at Chicago for the highest office within the gift of the American people. The constitutional age of presidents is 35 years. Bryan is 36, and if elected in November he will be the youngest president that the White House has ever known. He is essentially a self-made man and a man of the people. His principal education was gained in the public schools of Salem, Ill., where his parents resided. During the succeeding six years he received an academic training. The bent of his mind was toward the law and it was in the office of Lyman Trumbull, himself a conspicuous figure during the war and the reconstruction period which followed, that he laid the foundations of his legal career. It was in congress, however, that Mr. Bryan made the reputation which has swept him into his present prominence. In 1890, when only 30 years of age, he was elected a member of the house from the first district of Nebraska, where he located immediately after his admission to the bar. During the consideration of the single tariff bill, which were brought before the house during the first session of that congress, Mr. Bryan electrified his colleagues by the force and vigor of his utterances, his intimate knowledge of economic matters, the gracefulness of his oratory and his ability to sustain himself with credit against the ablest debaters upon the republican side of the chamber.

Sprung Into Fame in a Day.

His time on that occasion was repeatedly extended and he spoke in all several hours. He awoke the next morning to find himself famous. It was an ephemeral fame. He became from that day a conspicuous figure in a house which included such giants of debate as Breckinridge of Kentucky, Bourke Cockran and John R. Fellows of New York, Dingley and Reed of Maine, Springer of Illinois, Lodge of Massachusetts, Oats of Alabama and William L. Wilson of West Virginia, who now holds the office of postmaster-general. While Mr. Bryan was not a free trader he favored the lowest tariff consistent with the necessities of the government and he was placed by Speaker Crisp on the ways and means committee, an unusual honor for a new man. When the 53d congress met, Mr. Bryan had also achieved a reputation as a staunch supporter of free silver, and when President Cleveland convened that congress in extraordinary session in the autumn of 1893 Mr. Bryan was Mr. Bland's efficient lieutenant in leading the opposition to the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act. He continued in that congress as a member of the ways and means committee. He was one of the subcommittee which had in charge the internal revenue schedule of what was subsequently known as the Wilson tariff bill and he shares with Mr. McMillan of Tennessee in being the first to suggest the incorporation in that measure of an income tax.

Bryan's Personality.

Mr. Bryan added to his laurels as a brilliant and ready debater during the discussion of that measure in the house, and his influence was also exerted in favor of the income tax, which he regarded as one of its most essential features. With this congress Mr. Bryan's congressional career ended, and he returned to Omaha to accept the editorship of the World-Herald of that city, although his home for many years has been at Lincoln, the state capital. Mr. Bryan is about the medium in height. His face is cleanly shaven, and in appearance he resembles the great Pennsylvania commoner, Samuel J. Randall, who, at Mr. Bryan's age, might readily have passed for the latter's twin brother. He is a strict church man, and on several occasions during his residence in this city addressed the Young Men's Christian association and other religious bodies. He is earnest and enthusiastic in whatever cause enlists his sympathies, and it is not doubted that his personality will largely influence the approaching campaign.

Mrs. Bryan Witnessed the Balloting.

Chicago, July 11.—Mrs. Bryan, wife of the nominee, who is a small, modest-looking woman, had a seat in the gallery to the left of the speaker's stand, yesterday afternoon. When it was positively known that her husband had been named for the presidency she was surrounded by admiring friends and heartily congratulated. She thanked each one pleasantly and throughout maintained a quiet demeanor that impressed those about her. To a representative of the United Press, she said: "I think my husband will try to conserve the great honor these men conferred upon him. I appreciate

PROPHECY.

Upon his wooden hobby horse
He galloped to the bay,
The sunlight in his ruffled curls,
His laughter ringing gay.
And she who watched that reckless ride
Across the nursery floor,
And smiled upon the merry hat
And the wooden sword he wore—
Yet saw, through mist or sudden tears,
A vision strange and new—
Her little lad a soldier grown,
The prophecy come true!

Years after, when the play was real,
And through the crowded square
Drave men to battle marched away,
And the trumpet's note
O'erwatched with all a mother's pride
Their captain strong and tall
Yet as she looked with loving eyes,
The radiant face of all
She only saw a fair-haired child
Who galloped to the war
Upon his wooden hobby horse,
Across the nursery floor!

MYSTERY OF THE WHARF.

The office and warehouse of Schmidt & Co., shipping merchants, at the Dutch settlement of Batavia, was at the end of a long wharf projecting into the harbor. On one side of the wharf the water was 25 feet deep, and there was room for two ships to unload or discharge cargo. On the other side there was a rocky roof eight feet below the surface which could not be blasted out without great expense, and no craft ever came in on that side unless it was a coaster. The wharf was 5 feet wide, but the long warehouse, which stood in the center of it, was only 30 feet wide, thus leaving an open space about it. The office was at the sea end of the warehouse. Below the warehouse and reached by a rude stairway was a platform about ten feet square, which was placed there for the convenience of employees who wanted to take a bath. When the tide was in this platform was a foot under water; when the tide was out it was three or four feet above the surface.

For a year and a half, beginning with 1897, a large number of the 50 men employed in office and warehouse had made use of this platform, and there had not been an accident of any sort. In the summer of 1899, at four o'clock in the afternoon, two clerks in the office descended for a swim. They dived from the platform together when ready, but one of them never came to the surface. When the alarm was given his body was dragged for, but could not be found. It was generally believed that a shark had entered the open slip and seized him while he was under water, and for several weeks there was no more bathing.

The second victim was the captain of a barge consigned to the firm. One day while she was discharging cargo the captain heard the story of the mysterious disappearance. He laughed at the idea of a man-eating shark coming into the slip and contended that the clerk had struck his head against a rock in diving and been so badly hurt that he died by drowning. To prove that the spot was safe he leaped from the platform and swam about for a quarter of an hour. This was Saturday morning. On Sunday afternoon he tried again, having one of the clerks as companion.

For the first five minutes all went well. Then, as the captain climbed on the platform and dived by himself he remained so long under water that his companions raised an alarm. When several minutes had passed and he did not reappear hope was abandoned and divers were at once procured and the body searched for. Close in by the south of the slip, where there was a deep hole in the rock, the grapples brought up fragments of the lathing trunk worn by the unfortunate captain. But the body could not be raised. Native divers were offered as high as $100 to go down and investigate, but not a man would undertake it. Sentinels were posted to secure the body when it should rise, but nothing was ever seen of it.

For a long time Batavia enjoyed what was termed "The Wharf Mystery." There were various theories as to what had occurred to disable the two victims, and as to why their bodies could not be recovered, but the whole matter was finally forgotten except by the people on the wharf, and for several months there was no more bathing from the platform. There was from the slip on the other side, however, whenever it was free of craft. The water was deep and clear and of an evening there were a dozen men and boys swimming about and enjoying themselves. Not one of them met with any sort of adventure, and in time the employees of the office and warehouse began to make use of the platform again.

For a time nothing happened. One evening the chief clerk, whose name was Henry Littlefield, arrived a few minutes earlier than usual and announced to the porter that he was going down on the platform for a bath. The porter saw him descend with soap and to his, and heard him splashing about for a time. If an hour passed away, and as Littlefield did not return the porter went down to look for him and failed to find him. It was high tide and his clothing was hanging on a hook out of reach of the water, but as for the man himself he had disappeared as mysteriously as the other two. The alarm was given and the divers brought out, but nothing was grappled.

A diver was found to go down in his armor, and he made an exhaustive search of the slip and the deep hole. He made just one find and nothing could be proved by that. From the bottom of the hole he brought out a human skull which was as clean as a billiard ball and had evidently been in the water for a long time. It was finally identified by the teeth as the skull of the first victim of this strange mystery, but the identification did not prove by what means the clerk came to his death. Watchmen were employed night and day, boats were stationed here and there, but Littlefield's body did not rise to the surface. A reward of $2,000 was offered for the recovery of the body, and later a reward of $1,000 was offered to anyone who could solve the mystery. After two or three months the fate of the last victim passed from the public mind, and by order of Schmidt & Co. no one was permitted to make further use of the platform under the office.

In the year 1874 I was mate of a sandalwood trader visiting the islands in the Java sea, and when fully loaded we sailed for Batavia to offer our cargo to Schmidt & Co. We had no difficulty in making a sale, and our craft, drawing less than seven feet of water, was hauled into the shallow slip to discharge cargo. We entered the slip of a Saturday afternoon and were not to begin discharging cargo until Monday morning. Our crew consisted of six men. The three seamen and cook were lascars. Sunday morning about ten o'clock the captain and I left the craft to take a stroll through the city. Scarcely had we left the wharf when the cook and seamen disrobed and plunged into the waters of the slip for a swim.

After awhile they started on a race over the deep hole at the mouth of the slip the cook, suddenly disappeared. The two seamen on the vessel and three or four loungers on the wharf all agreed that something suddenly flashed out of the water, curled around the cook's neck, and drew his head under water just as he was crying out in terror. That "something black" was about the size of an inch rope, very flexible, and it was moved with great swiftness. The man was pulled down so quickly that no one could be sure that he saw what he saw. We spent the entire afternoon dragging the slip and rowing about the harbor, but as in the three other cases no trace of the body was found.

One day while we were waiting for the excitement to calm down, and while strolling about the wharf, a puff of wind blew my hat into the slip. The tide was coming in just then and nearly at high water, and the hat was carried under the wharf and lodged against the platform. To recover it I went down the long disused stairway. There was at least ten inches of water over the platform, and the hat had caught on a splinter at the corner nearest the deep hole. I splashed through the water and bent over to grab for my headgear. Just as my fingers seized it something darted out of the water and whipped around my shoulders. Close at hand was a spile, with two braces from the platform secured to it.

As I instinctively started up I was drawn into the crotch made by these braces and threw out my hands and got a firm hold. I cried out in alarm as I was drawn forward, but I had no idea of what was happening. My first thought was that the platform had given way under my feet. It was a matter of 15 seconds before a second something darted from the water and fell across my shoulders. I saw it as it came, and instantly realized that it was one of the tentacles of a large octopus. I now screamed for help, and as I called out a third tentacle shot forward and struck me at the bend of the knees. My cries raised an instant alarm on the wharf. Inside of five minutes a dozen men, mostly sailors, were down on the stairs and platform and ready to render assistance.

The clothing I had on consisted of a woolen shirt and a pair of trousers of rather heavy cloth. Owing to this the cups of the tentacles did not strike my bare flesh, nor could they get a firm grip. While the first one darted at me held me tight to the braces, the two others played around and over me like whiplashes. As the men came running down and saw what nature of creature had attacked me, they hesitated for a moment to approach. Then three sailors sprang forward with drawn knives and began to cut and slash. As they did so a fourth and fifth tentacle darted out of the water and lashed them, and two more men came forward with sharp hatchets.

From the time the first man reached me to the end of the battle was a period of ten minutes, and every minute was hard work. Every one of the five tentacles was severed time and again, but so fierce and determined was the octopus that he actually rose to the surface beside the platform and struck at the shifting feet of the men with his horrible beak. The lopping off of his arms disabled him, but he would have made his escape just the same if a man had not come down on the platform with a shotgun loaded with buckshot and fired the charge into his head.

As I clung to the braces one of the tentacles crossed my bare wrist, but that was the only spot where the flesh was touched. One of the suckers or air cups fastened to the flesh and had to be cut away bit by bit. The feeling was as if a hot iron had been laid on. While no blood was drawn a great blister appeared, and later on a sore, and it was quite three months before the injury was entirely healed. When the fight was over I was too weak to stand, and it was two or three days before I got my nerve back.

That was how "The Mystery of the Wharf" was finally solved, though the people who had offered the reward did not come forward and land it over. Had I stood a foot to right or left of the spile when seized I should have been pulled off the platform and dragged down into the deep hole to be leisurely devoured. The four men who lost their lives fell victims to the same creature. The octopus had come into the harbor unnoticed, and made his lair in the deep hole at the mouth of the slip. He may not have remained there all the time, but after his death a diver made a more careful search of the place and the bones were discovered and sent up—Philadelphia Press.

The Best Thing in Milk Pails

is Pearline. That's the solid truth. You get them cleaner, and with less work and fuss, than with anything else you can use. It saves you so much that it's cheaper than the commonest stuff can be. Proof—the largest dairies and dealers use Pearline. Some women are afraid of Pearline. They think that where cleaning is made so easy, there must be some harm to the thing washed. But Pearline can't hurt milk pails, anyway. And it can't hurt the finest lace or the softest hands, any more than it hurts milk pails.

Not So with the imitations—the fact that they are imitations or followers proves a lack of something.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore of great importance, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

BRYAN'S FRIENDS GO WILD.

Great Demonstration in the Nominee's Favor at Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., July 11.—When the news of Bryan's nomination was received here from Chicago the immense crowds in front of the office of the World-Herald, the newspaper of which the nominee is editor, went wild with excitement. They threw their hats in the air and yelled themselves hoarse. Hundreds of photographs of the silver champion were scattered over the heads of the people, and they scrambled madly for them, tumbling over each other and yelling in perfect abandon. It required considerable effort to keep them from crowding into the office. The demonstration continued until far into the night. A number of prominent state politicians were in the crowd, all jubilant over the nomination of Nebraska's son. Among those who anxiously watched the bulletins was Charles W. Bryan, brother of the nominee.

Cretan Rumor Discredited in England. London, July 11.—The government was questioned in the house of commons last night in regard to the truth of the statements contained in a special news dispatch from Athens, that Russia was prompting France to occupy Crete and hold that island against Great Britain's tenure of Cyprus; that the Greek government had become alarmed and was inducing the retards to accept the terms of the Porte, and that the English fleet had been so strengthened as to practically blockade the island of Crete. George N. Curzon, under foreign secretary, replied that the government had not heard of any of these things and regarded them as extremely improbable.

"I am glad to know it," she resumed, shortly afterward, as she arranged her hair. "There is nothing like being close mouthed."

So he acted on that hint also.—N. Y. Recorder.

VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

Hubby Made a Sacrifice on the Altar of Affection Through a Porter's Error.

He had just returned from Manchester, where he had been called upon urgent business. The honeymoon was scarcely over, and, besides, it was his first absence from her side since they were made one. The three days of his absence seemed to both like three long years; but now he had returned, and she was in his arms once more. Promise after promise had been renewed and vows of eternal fidelity exchanged. "And you will never drink?" she murmured.

"Dearest, you know I have never done so," he replied in injured tones.

"And you will never gamble, either, will you, dear?" she asked.

"Precious, I have never gambled."

"And you will never, never use tobacco again, my idol?"

"Never, never again, my dear, since you wish it so."

And she believed him in her woman's way, and "all was merry as a marriage bell."

But he mentioned his portmanteau, and a little struggle ensued. He would go and get his portmanteau, he said.

No, no; he was tired; she would get it. No, no.

But yes, yes. Was she going to let him walk across the room for a nasty old portmanteau, and he was so tired?

How could he think her so cruel? No, indeed! She would go and get it herself, and open it for him, too, and so there.

When she said "so there" he knew there was nothing else for him but to submit gracefully, and he submitted.

But, alas for what followed!

She opened the bag! What was in it? One long empty flask, one meerschaum pipe, one pack of playing cards, new; three packs, ditto, old; a few racing tickets, sundries.

That was all.

One of those scenes which "baffle all description" followed, but finally the porter came up and explained that he had sent up the wrong portmanteau.

Both are slowly recovering.—Tit-Bits.

TRAINING OF BIRD DOGS.

Are Taught Many Good Qualities by Watching the Older Canines.

A novel theory of bird dog training is advanced by an experienced hunter and trainer, George Kennedy. He says: "We all know how few and far between the good dogs are, whether good, bad or indifferent trainers have had them in hand. Not one out of a hundred is so well trained that he has sense of his own. It may be possible that we may be training our hunting dogs wrong. Those dogs that I trained perfectly had no sense of their own, and those that I half-trained had more sense, were better bird finders, but each of them had some canine idiosyncrasy that brought him down below the level of the desirable dog."

The truth of the matter, he thinks, is that training deadens the dog's mind. It becomes automatic, and when a novel dilemma arises it has no reasoning faculties with which to meet the emergency.

"I am half inclined," Mr. Kennedy says, "to believe that the way to train a dog is to let him learn from his superiors—that is, from the best dogs possible. That is a slower process, but it excludes any sort of human interference. So far as my experience and observation have gone, it takes at least two years for an old dog to train or teach a young one. He learns in this manner to point, back, retrieve and range, and no other dog can range like the self-taught or dog-taught ranger. He goes like the wind and hunts for birds every minute, with a single eye to find them. To have a man teach a dog is like having a phonograph teach a child. The best dogs for hunting purposes are those which are thinkers."

Upon the Adirondack mountains pups are taught to run deer by turning them loose with an old hound. An old hunter likes to show the youngsters how to handle a gun accurately and carefully. The old hound delights in an opportunity to show the young ones how to find and follow a cold, warm or hot trail. There are dog-taught hounds in the Adirondacks that will follow a trail as well as any in the world. The dog-trainers are thinking hard about Mr. Kennedy's suggestion.—Forest and Stream.

C. MACARDELL,

SATURDAY, JULY 11, 1896

There can be but one opinion of the speech made by Senator Hill in support of the minority platform. It was among the great speeches of the world. It was masterly in its grasp and presentation of his subject. It was logical and diplomatic, for despite the temptation to be consistent he tried not to prejudice on the law. It was cogent, forceful and to the point. It did not contain an unnecessary word and at the same time was concise. An honorable argument satisfied to one who heard it. It was a speech that made a man out of a statesman and a man

A SMALL VOLCANO IN PORT JERVIS

Smouldering Cinders in an Embankment Cause an Explosion That Alarms the Timid.

Several years ago, when Port Jervis had acquired a reputation for wickedness, it was often intimated that the town was located in close proximity, if not directly over, a coal itself. Those truly good people in the village, who held to the latter opinion, were convinced that they were right, Thursday evening, when there was a rumbling noise and then a violent explosion, which shook the whole village and a cloud of fire and steam, accompanied by stones, cinders and earth, rose over a hundred feet into the air, while an excavation was made from which hundreds of cubic yards of earth had been scattered about for a long distance.

The explanation of all this, however, is this: A low spot of ground near the Delaware River had been filled in and an embankment raised for Erie switches. The filling was mostly of cinders and rubbish and for the past two years fires have been burning deep down in the embankment. It is believed that the explosion was caused by the conversion of the heavy railroad that evening into steam by the intense subterranean heat.

THE ARMY WORM'S RAVAGES.

Laying Waste Fertile Fields in Many Sections of the State.

The army worm is laying waste the crops of farmers in many sections of the State. They have been reported in many localities in Delaware, Broome and Chemung counties. They have appeared in several places in this county, but not in very alarming numbers. In Dutchess county they have done great damage, and are now reported to be desolating Gov. Morton's Ellerslie farm at Rhinebeck. They have just appeared in Chemung county, near Norwich, and have devoured a large field of corn and fifteen acres of fine oats, leaving nothing but the bare stalks.

A BIG JUDGMENT.

In Favor of Dr. Seward and Against Senator Borsey.

From the Goshen Independent.

Among the heavy judgments recently recorded in the office of the County Clerk is one against Senator and Mrs. S. W. Dorsey for $15,590. This judgment was obtained in an action for breach of contract. It will be remembered that some few years ago Dr. Seward was negotiating for the purchase of a large property in New Mexico, with a view of establishing there a Sanitarium enterprise. The above action grew out of the failure of the Dorseys to fulfill a contract to convey with a clear title the property involved.

An Officer in Hard Luck.

Officer Soper, of Walton, took a prisoner to the Albany penitentiary, a few days ago, and while waiting at the station to take a train for home was arrested as a suspicious character and taken to police headquarters. It was not until he showed his receipt for his prisoner that he was allowed to go. The arrest was made because the police had been asked to look out for a man with a scar on his cheek and Soper answered this description, his prisoner having marked him while resisting arrest.

Helped to Return to Ellenville.

The mother of John Evans or Vansey, who is in the Norwich jail for misappropriating the funds of the Norwich Steam Co., went from Ellenville to Norwich to see her son. She is very poor and had only money enough to pay her fare. Evans' wife was anxious to return, with his mother to her old home, and Sheriff Payne, whose sympathies were touched, raised enough funds to pay her fare and $1.50 besides.

The Unfortunate Service.

The Rev. Alfred P. Booth, of St. Albans, Vt., will preach in the Assembly Rooms, Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Booth spent four weeks in Middletown last winter and while here made many friends, all of whom will be glad of this opportunity to see and hear him again. The public is cordially invited to both services.

HELD ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

A Young Girl Enticed from Her Home by a Woman.

From our Goshen Correspondent.

Sadie Doty, a young woman who arrived in Goshen several months ago from one of the rural districts and who during her residence in this village added by her questionable conduct not a few blemishes to a reputation not altogether spotless, is held for trial at Goshen jail on a charge which may send her up the river.

Last Thursday she induced a young girl, aged about fifteen years, residing with her parents near Stone Bridge, to accompany her to a place near Florida, where they stayed over night at the residence of a friend of Sadie's. In the morning they drove to Goshen and several times during the day the Doty girl tried without success to induce her young companion to board the trolley cars for Middletown. Her purpose was undoubtedly an unholy one.

She finally promised to procure a horse and wagon and take the girl home. It was here that Officer Landy, who had discovered the existing state of affairs, arrested Miss Doty and took charge of her young companion.

A preliminary hearing took place before Justice C. W. Coleman at the Court House, last night, and an adjournment was taken until the evidence can be arranged in presentable form.

FIRE DEPARTMENT OFFICERS MEET

The Badges Distributed—Talking Over the Parade—Fire Police—Deekertown Companies Want to Parade.

A meeting of the Board of Engineers and the foremen of the several companies of the Fire Department was held at Excelsior's parlors, last evening. The new badges were distributed as follows:

No. 1, Chief Thorpe; No. 2, Assistant Chief Charles Higham; No. 3, Second Asst. Chief Schmitt; No. 4, Sec. E. A. Lorenz; Nos. 5 to 54, Excelsior Hook and Ladder Co.; Nos. 55 to 92, Monaghan Hose Co.; Nos. 93 to 132, Engle Hose Co.; 133 to 171, Melquoid Engine Co.; 172 to 210, Phoenix Engine Co.; 211 to 250, Ontario Hose Co.; 251 to 290, Waikiki Engine Co.

Matters pertaining to the coming parade were discussed and a meeting will be held, next Wednesday evening, to confer with the Citizens Committee.

The subject of fire police was also considered, but as all the companies have not yet appointed members to serve in that capacity, the subject was dropped for the time being, to be taken up at a meeting to be held early in August.

Only two of the companies have made definite selections of visiting companies. Excelsior will entertain Young America Hose Co., of Poughkeepsie, and Ontario will have as guests Neversink Hose Co., of Port Jervis.

Two companies of Deekertown, N. J., have expressed a desire to participate in the parade and arrangements will doubtless be made to give them a place in line.

THE INIQUITIOUS RAINES LAW.

If You Want Alcohol for Household Purposes You Must Get a Prescription.

It has been discovered at Albany that under the Raines law, druggists are not permitted to sell alcohol in quantities of less than five gallons except upon a physician's prescription.

An officer bought five cents worth of the fluid at a drug store and then demanded to see the State certificate. Inquiry at the office of the State Department of Excise was made and it was found that a certificate was required, but that until the law was understood prosecutions would not be made.

This simply means that if you want a small quantity of alcohol for household purposes you must pay your physician for a prescription, that will cost several times the value of the alcohol.

AT THE ERIE DEPOT.

The Temporary Quarters About Ready for Occupancy.

The temporary quarters at the Erie depot are about completed. Baggage-master Ellison has already removed and the ticket and telegraph office will be moved early next week. The new waiting room is ready for use. The entrance is in the west end of the building and is accessible from Depot street and the platform.

The Wells Fargo Express Co. has not yet been provided for in the temporary quarters, and it is probable the office will be removed to some other building.

spells of Blindness.

"For six or seven years I was troubled with sick headache and spells of blindness. Sometimes they would continue for two or three days at a time. I have tried some of the best physicians in New York City and Europe and have taken different kinds of medicine with no good result. I at last resorted to Hood's Sarsaparilla and have taken six bottles. I am now feeling perfectly well. I have not had a spell of headache or blindness since I took the first two or three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla." M. J. Foran, 385 Cherry street, New York, N. Y.

A Short Cut to Health.

To try to cure constipation by taking pills is like going around in a circle. You can never reach the point sought, but only get back to the starting point. A perfect natural laxative is Barth's Coler King, the celebrated remedy for all nerve, blood, stomach, liver and kidney diseases. It regulates the bowels. J. J. Chambers will give you a sample package free, 57 North street, Large bottles 25 cents and 50 cents.

A Word or Two

To those suffering from catarrh or the thousand subjects to severe attacks of cold in the head, will not be amiss if a sure remedy can be offered. Ely's Cream Balm has become a favorite in all sections of the United States, because of its effectiveness. Your cold in the head will be quickly relieved by it, and the severest attack of catarrh will yield to, and be perfectly cured by a thorough treatment. Catarrh is not a blood disease, but an inflammation of the passages of the nose and throat, due to climatic changes.
